ALLIANCE

insights empowering action

Engage with researchers to develop and refine proposals for new environmental health research projects.

Kyle Ferrar MPH, Western Program Director:

Kyle manages work in the west coast region, where most of the current projects focus on extraction activities in California and Colorado. He is constantly managing relationships and collaborating with allies, including community groups, other researchers, and both local and national advocacy groups related to oil and gas development.

The FracTracker Alliance studies, maps, and communicates the risks of oil and gas development to support the renewable energy transformation.
